

THE NEXT STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS
Of President Barak Obama

Fellow members of the world community: When I first took office, the United States was respected and feared around the world. This was due to my predecessor's excessive loyalty to our former allies and his overwrought suspicion of our supposed enemies. I have reversed all that. America is no longer feared. The respect of the international community will surely follow. But world opinion is unimportant when compared the monumental symbolism of my election, a down payment on American's redemption.

Mr. Speaker and members of congress: many of you have probably noticed by now that I am not actually present in this chamber...corporeally speaking.

This is yet another historical moment in my administration. Courtesy of our friends, the Russians, I am addressing you from earth orbit, where I must remain until the return trip that our friends, the Chinese, have promised...in mere weeks at the most, I'm told.

Speaking of the Chinese - I am pleased to report that my Buy America Initiative has borne fruit. Thanks to the recent sale of Hawaii, the US will have a balanced budget for the first time in my administration.

Many more bold initiatives are in the pre-planning stage, awaiting staff analysis.

Speaking of staff - you can be assured that the current vacancies in the Executive Branch, including the positions of Vice President, Secretaries of Defense and State, will be filled...as soon as the impasse with the Senate is resolved.

The full text of my State of the Union Address has been released by Julian Assange. So I will simply conclude with a note of reassurance to the American people.

Be reassured that I am reassuring you. The only thing we have to fear is reality itself. But reality, too, will pass, and hope is just around the corner.

Thank you.
